DETAILED ACTION

INTRODUCTION

1. Applicant's arguments in the amendment, filed February 26, 2004, with respect to claim 74 and those claims dependent therefrom have been fully considered and are persuasive. The rejection of claims 74-87 has been withdrawn. The rejection under 35 USC 103(a) of the remaining claims is, however, maintained.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

3. Claims 1-15, 18, 20-30, 32-50, 52, 54-60, 63-69 and 71-73 are again rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lewis et al. in view of Tice et al. ('330), Hodgman et al., Ed., Gutsell, Jr. et al. and Tracy et al.

This rejection was explained in the previous Office action.

4. Claim 31 is again rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lewis et al. in view of Tice et al. ('330), Hodgman et al., Eds., Gutsell, Jr. et al. and Tracy et al. as applied to claims 1-15, 18, 20-30, 32-50, 52, 54-60, 63-69 and 71-73 above, and further in view of Thanoo et al.

This rejection was also explained in the previous Office action.

5. Claims 51, 53, 61, 62 and 70 are again rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lewis et al. in view of Tice et al. ('330), Hodgman et al., Eds., Gutsell, Jr. et al. and Tracy et al. as applied to claims 1-15, 18, 20-30, 32-50, 52, 54-60, 63-69 and 71-73 above, and further in view of Rickey et al. ('503).

This rejection was also explained in the previous Office action.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed February 26, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants argue that the new claim limitation of washing after drying the finished microparticles is not taught by the prior art of record and this makes the instant claims patentable.

Examiner agrees that the specific limitation is not explicitly taught but disagrees that the limitation makes the claims patentable.

The section of Tice et al. ('330) quoted in the previous Office action is the reason the rejections are maintained. It is clear that the microparticles are finished at that point, although not dried. Tice et al. chose not to spend the time and energy on drying microparticles only to wet them again in the wash step. Rather, they proceeded right to the washing step. They certainly do not teach away from an additional step of drying before washing but one of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that the solvent could be further reduced by a drying step prior to the extraction (washing) step of Tice et al.

Applicants' attention is directed to instant Example 3. In that example, the microparticles were not dried but subjected directly to the wash step. Sample 1 was extracted with ethanol, samples 2 and 3 were extracted with a mixture of ethanol and heptanes by adding ethanol to the heptane suspension of microparticles. Comparison of the results with the results obtained in Example 1, where the microparticles were dried before the extraction step, is instructive, even though no direct comparison is shown. The levels of residual solvent and the residual goserelin levels are very similar. This indicates that it makes no difference if you wash after drying or before. Applicants are invited to submit a declaration under 37 CFR 1.132 containing results of experiments making a direct comparison between processes wherein the only difference in conditions is extracting before or after drying. In the absence of such direct evidence, the extant data show no difference between the two and the choice of extracting before or after drying is not seen to make a patentable distinction. Thus, the above rejections are maintained.

Conclusion

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
